Our mission is to revolutionize the role that learning plays in the nonprofit sector

You want to create a nonprofit learning program that is strategic and delivers your mission. You want to lead people to make change. You want that change to stick. You need help where learning, leadership, and nonprofits meet. Let’s talk.

I am a teacher, instructional designer, and learning strategist known for creating nonprofit learning experiences that move people to action. A former teacher who served nonprofits as Executive Director, program director, board member, and volunteer, I have made a career of creating and leading learning programs, including one that won the Golden Apple Award. I have trained thousands of people in-person and online, I speak on learning and leadership, and I write books and blogs on topics at the intersection of learning and nonprofits. I am excited to know the impact you seek and how I can help.
